Decision May Be Taken Today

CPR Ferry Links to Island In Balance as Seamen Waver

May Join Strike If Union Agrees

Vancouver Island's CPR ferry links were still in operation early today as seamen and the striking Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen postponed definite action.

Black Ball ferry service between Vancouver and Nanaimo is not expected to be affected.

Whether Victoria will face isolation except for air travel and the Island Highway may be determined at an emergency meeting of Seamen's International Union members in Vancouver today.

The midnight steamer to Vancouver was delayed for about 25 minutes indirectly by the strike early today.

Vancouver-bound freight from Seattle, which arrived here three hours earlier, was unloaded at the Victoria warehouse because of the apparent uncertainty of the sailing. It took dockworkers about an hour to re-load the through freight, a longshoreman explained.

CPR officials in Victoria last night said there were "no incidents" in the arrival of one ferry from Seattle at 9.30, and the midnight departure of the Vancouver boat. Wharf ticket offices were flooded with calls from anxious travellers, who were told "you know as much as we do" about the situation by harassed clerks.

NO PICKETS SEEN

There were no pickets seen on local docks after the 4 p.m. strike deadline, and a "normal" flow of tickets was reported in demand for the midnight passage.

Harry Newton, CPR district passenger agent, said that "it is the intention of the railroad to keep operating the ships" of the B.C. Coastal Service until the situation is clarified.

Pickets were seen in the area of Vancouver CPR docks late yesterday but all sailings continued on schedule when ferry crews, still without union instructions, reported for work.

Rumors were rife in Victoria last night that pickets would arrive from Vancouver today to carry placards in front of the inner harbor docks.

A last-minute order to picket the sea-going services of the CPR was issued Wednesday morning by William Druce, international vice-president of the union, who came from Portland, Ore., to conduct the strike campaign. But the order was never rigidly enforced.

Mr. Druce said the order came from union headquarters in Cleveland. Concerning the disagreement among the waterfront unions, he said: "I am not prepared to make any decisions. I shall have to get in touch with Cleveland. There are many uncertainties.

"The waterfront people apparently want us to take another look at the situation."

CPR officials said earlier that chances of the ship service becoming involved were "remote."

But Norm Cunningham, business agent for SIU reiterated last night that the union always respects picket lines. No instructions were given to the men, because they "know it," he said.

If pickets are installed and the seamen and allied waterfront unions respect the lines in Vancouver much of the heavy daily flow of foodstuffs, goods and expressed parcels to Victoria and Nanaimo from the mainland will be affected, as well as much of the cross-strait passenger traffic.

There are only about a half-dozen longshoremen who would be affected by a sympathy boycott in Victoria, but port concessions of the ferry service may suffer.

A small Victoria firm immediately affected by a tie-up would be United Taxi Service, whose nine drivers depend almost entirely on ferry traffic for its passengers, since the firm holds the dock concessions.

The strike severed commercial telegraph communications to CPR rail-side communities on Vancouver Island where the telegraph offices are located within the railroad depots.

"Downtown" offices, not connected to depot property, remained open as usual yesterday in Duncan, Nanaimo, Coutenay, Tofino and Port Alberni. Indications were that service to these communities would continue unhampered by the strike.

A Victoria telegraph clerk said that telegrams sent to the smaller communities would be telephoned directly from the nearest office open.

Victoria Really Off The Rails

The CPR strike yesterday left Victoria with absolutely no railway service.

The CNR has been unable to run its trains between Victoria and Tyup, near Duncan, since mud slides and washouts blocked the tracks during the heavy rainstorm, Dec. 9.

City Pickets in Action

A few striking railroad men picketed the E & N workshop on Esquimalt Road when the walkout went into force. This man and youth refused to give their names and said they had been ordered not to give any information or comment about the strike.—(Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

Entire CPR Tied Up

MONTREAL (CP) — Paralysis enveloped the vast rail network of the Canadian Pacific Railway Wednesday as a firemen's strike became effective at 4 p.m. local time.

Operations were tied up from coast to coast. Maritime points were the first affected—at 4 p.m. Atlantic time. Four hours later, at 4 p.m. Pacific time, trains came to a halt in British Columbia.

PICKETS INSPECTED

Union chief W. E. Gamble inspected pickets at Windsor Station, where CPR President N. R. Crump's office is located. At about the same time Mr. Crump issued a statement offering to run trains if unions other than the firemen's union will work.

And he added that if the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen (CLC) "accepted the report of the conciliation board not one fireman would suffer loss of employment or earnings." The union already has rejected the report.

STATEMENT READ

Mr. Gamble toured picket points and read a statement he sent to Acting Prime Minister Howe as the strike became effective in the Central Region. CPR operates in eight provinces and five time zones, excluding Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, which has a time zone of its own.

Although the firemen's union has only some 3,000 members in CPR, a total of some 75,000 workers are expected to be out of employment. Non-fireman unions have pledged to respect picket lines.

CROSSES NATION

The CPR right-of-way stretches 17,000 miles, from Halifax to Victoria.

Mr. Crump called Mr. Gamble shortly after noon to inquire if there had been any change in the union stand, it was reported.

"We told him that there had been no change, and it amounted to mutual verification that neither one of us had changed his stand," Mr. Gamble said.

UNION BLAMES CPR

Mr. Gamble, releasing the text of his telegram to Mr. Howe, declared: "In view of the several facts, among them that the CPR is the only important railway on the North American continent refusing to withdraw those demands in the diesel issue, and also refusing to grant locomotive firemen deserved wage increases, the brotherhood cannot conclude otherwise than that the prime responsibility rests with the company."

He reported that strike pay is effective immediately, with firemen eligible to receive as much as $150 monthly if they have families. The scale is $3 a day basic, 75 cents for the first child and 50 cents for others.

Across Canada, the question was asked how long the walkout—with its impact on the Canadian economy—would likely last. In 1950 Prime Minister St. Laurent called a special sitting of Parliament to stop a strike, but Canadian National Railways as well as the CPR was involved in that strike, which lasted nine days. Parliament now is scheduled to sit Jan. 8.

'I Have No Squawks'

Gene Dethrones King Sugar Ray

'I Must Admit He Hit Hard'

NEW YORK (AP)—Unmarked and with the composure of a veteran actor who had just scored a hit on opening night, Gene Fullmer, new middleweight champion of the world, sat on a table in his dressing room in the Madison Square Garden catacombs Wednesday night.

He had just taken the title from Sugar Ray Robinson in a rousing 15-round decision.

"Hurt?" he grinned in answer to a question. "Do I look hurt?"

He didn't. In fact, he had more of Robinson's blood on him than his own, the result of opening a deep gash over Sugar Ray's left eye in the seventh round.

"Yes, I know Robinson threw a lot of punches," he acknowledged. "But believe me, I caught at least 95 per cent of them on my gloves and arms."

Fullmer said he couldn't be sure whether Sugar Ray was the hardest hitter he ever had faced.

"Let's say he is one of the hardest," he observed. "I blocked so many of his punches it was hard to tell. But those that did get in, I must admit were hard."

Fullmer said he never really opened up on orders from his manager, Marv Jenson. The pilot agreed.

"From the sixth round on," laughed Jenson. "Gene would come in and say to me: 'Can I open up now, Marv?' Each time I told him to fight the same way he had been fighting. I wasn't looking for a knockout. I was content just to win the fight."

Old Champion Grins in Defeat

NEW YORK (AP) — The loser and old champion took his defeat like a man Wednesday night, disclaiming alibis, but Ray Robinson's managers were loud in their criticism of Gene Fullmer's tactics and the refereeing of Ruby Goldstein.

Seated on a table with his back to a wall, the dethroned Sugar Ray, showing no signs of his vicious 15-round battle with the kid from Utah except an inch-long gash over his left eye, flashed his big smile and tried to answer questions above the chorus of wails from his board of directors.

It became embarrassing to Robinson finally, and he broke in to say positively:

"Understand, I have no squawks against Ruby, Fullmer or anybody. The only thing I will say is I thought rabbit punching was against the rules."

Sugar Ray declared he never was hurt by the surging Fullmer.

Did Ray think Fullmer was a good champion? Robinson laughed.

"He won, according to the officials," he said. "If he's no good, then I'm no good, either. I've seen better champions, and I've seen worse. But he's a good champion."

Robinson said with a wry grin that he thought he hit his stocky opponent some good punches as he came in, "but I guess nobody saw them."

He sized up the fight pretty well when someone asked him what he thought cost him the fight.

"Fullmer," he answered candidly.

Many Communities Hard Hit

Moving Food, Fuel Big Strike Problem

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Delivery of food, fuel and mail loom as the all-important problem for a long list of Canadian communities serviced only by the Canadian Pacific Railway as the company's firemen went on strike Wednesday.

Although most of the communities affected can be reached by roads, trucks will be hard pressed to meet essential demands, let alone keep up routine deliveries, A Canadian Press survey indicates.

The strike also threatens to curtail or close down production in many industries, including the 6,000-man Consolidated Mining and Smelting plant at Trail, B.C., International Nickel Company at Sudbury, Ont., and the Canadian Gypsum Company at Windsor, N.S., where 400 men were laid off Wednesday because of the strike.

ISOLATED AREA

One of the most isolated areas is a CPR-serviced area northwest of Sudbury. Starting from the small village of Benny, 40 miles northwest of the mining centre, there are 11 communities on a 190-mile stretch of the main transcontinental CPR line which are completely dependent on CPR service.

A 12th, Chapleau is joined to the outside world by a 149-mile road. Then there is a 104-mile stretch from Franz, Ont., where the CPR meets the Algoma Central Railway, to Marathon on Lake Superior where there are four more isolated centres.

STOCKPILE FOOD

These villages, with a combined population of about 4,500, have been stockpiling food and fuel to meet the strike.

In Montreal, CPR and union spokesmen said no plans have been made for special relief trains, to the isolated communities, either in Northwest Ontario or other areas.

CONGESTION FEARED

In Ottawa post office officials asked people to withhold mailing parcels to points served by the strike-bound CPR.

There was no immediate clear indication of what would happen to CPR express services. Most CPR depots were reported accepting express on a "subject to delay" basis.

In British Columbia, a company spokesman said more than 8,000 workers would be made idle.

In Toronto, 8,000 men were laid off and hundreds of CPR workers in other Ontario centres were told to stay home for the duration of the strike.

U.S. Challenge

'Your Move —Out!'

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower challenged Russian Premier Nikolai A. Bulganin last night to bow to a United Nations resolution and withdraw Soviet armies from Hungary.

Mr. Eisenhower said such action by the Kremlin would be a "significant step" toward the reduction of East-West tensions which, he said, Russia professes to seek.

Mr. Eisenhower issued the challenge in a new letter rejecting the Soviet leader's Nov. 17 proposal for a five-power "summit meeting" to end the long disarmament deadlock.

Bulganin's Nov. 17 letter proposed that the United States, Russia, Britain, France and India call a top-level disarmament meeting.

In his letter, Mr. Eisenhower said he was willing to entertain the idea of a meeting the chiefs of state if he thought it would produce "significant results."

But "in my opinion," he said, "deliberations within the framework of the United Nations seem more likely to produce a step forward in the highly-complicated matter of disarmament. Accordingly, the United States will make further proposals there."

Cloak of Secrecy Veils Island Murder Autopsy

DUNCAN—An autopsy on the body of murder victim Paul Richard Powling, 25, was completed here last night, but an official cloak of secrecy was thrown about the findings. (See page 9.)

Nothing further is expected to be announced until Jan. 9, when the preliminary hearing on a murder charge against Thomas Richard Symes, 31, is resumed.

On instructions from the attorney-general's department, Coroner A. E. Green will not hold an inquest or official inquiry.

Symes is being held in Oakalla.

Jovial Companion for Prince

Charles Gets 'Deputy Dad'

SANDRINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters) — The Royal Family Wednesday called in a jovial-looking schoolteacher who sports a handlebar moustache as "deputy dad" for Prince Charles during the Christmas vacation.

The eight-year-old prince, at the rough-and-tumble age, misses his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, now in the Antarctic in the course of a world tour.

To solve the problem, the Queen asked Michael Farebrother, 37-year-old headmaster of an exclusive boys' preparatory school, to spend the next two or three weeks with Charles at Sandringham, where the Royal Family traditionally comes for Christmas.

Farebrother, a bachelor, is addicted to tweeds and peaked caps. He has a reputation as a marvellous storyteller.

His background includes Eton, Oxford University and the Grenadier Guards. He met the Royal Family during the war when he was stationed at Windsor.

"I shouldn't think Mr. Farebrother will be giving Prince Charles any lessons," a Buckingham Palace spokesman said Wednesday.

"We call him a tutor-companion for want of a more exact title. He'll really be playing with Prince Charles, talking to him, riding with him, taking him on excursions, the way his father would have done if he were here. You know, the sort of things women and girls are no good at."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

I HAVE never set eyes on Elvis Presley, but I have heard him, and I have the highest respect for his earning power.

Elvis fans who are already starting to write me abusive letters can lay aside their poison pens, at least until they reach the end of this piece.

I'm not against Mr. Presley. I'm not for him either. He is a natural phenomenon, like an earthquake or a hurricane. You don't take sides for or against a hurricane. It's there, that's all.

However, many people do not share my attitude of helpless impartiality.

* * *

Recently I heard about a young man who went to see "Love Me Tender" four times. He hates Presley, and he thought the show was the worst. Why did he keep going back for more punishment? Because in the movie poor Elvis gets shot. This boy liked seeing him drop dead.

Embittered, vengeful youth that he is, the Elvis-hater felt that the sight of his enemy biting the dust was ample repayment for two hours of tedium.

Although he comes to jeer and gloat rather than to whinny approval, this junior sadist's money is legal tender. Hatred and contempt can be good box office. If The Pelvis is as canny as I suspect, enemies who show their hostility with cash are the kind of enemies he is glad to have.

* * *

Perhaps Elvis can exploit people's dislike further, by appearing in a movie that contains nothing but a collection of death scenes, in which he stars as the corpse. In one reel he would be shot; in the next, clubbed to death with his own guitar; then self-strangled by a vocal cord that shakes loose on a shrill note and wraps itself around his windpipe.

Better still, arrange to have himself killed at the beginning of the movie instead of the end—with real bullets. Being dead isn't a guarantee of success in show business, but it helps.

Garden Notes

New Plant Life Takes Ches' Eye

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In my New Year's Day col-column I reviewed some of the gardening gadgets, chemicals and materials which will be making their appearance in the garden stores this year. Today, it might be interesting to have a chat about some of the new plants, flowers and vegetables we can expect to find in the new catalogues.

One vegetable I am determined to try out this year is the new Black Beauty squash. For some yeads now I have been raving about the Zucchini squash, so popular with the Italian colony around San Francisco Bay, and so delicious when pulled while very young and steamed or boiled lightly. In fact, my selection of seeds as gifts for my readers in 1953 included the Black Zucchini squash.

BLACK BEAUTY

Black Beauty is a new and improved Zucchini. The fruits look like largish cucumbers with smooth skins of a very dark color—almost black—and with creamy white flesh of a delicate buttery flavor.

There is a new radish called Champion which appears to be an improvement over my old favorite Cherry Belle. It has the same perfectly round shape and all-red coloring of Cherry Belle, and the same speed of growth, maturing in only 21 days, but it is a bigger radish, growing to almost golf-ball size without becoming pithy or hot.

The newest thing in beans is an early variety called Greencrop, making upright and strong-growing plants only two feet tall, and bearing a very heavy crop of dark green pods with white seeds. In the past, you had to grow a mid-season variety to get good flavor from your snap beans, as the early maturing kinds were no great shakes by the time they reached the table. Greencrop has overcome this fault, combining earliness with an excellent flavor.

Among the flowers, probably the most startling development has been in the old-fashioned Black-eyed Susan (Rudbeckia). Susan has been given the works by the plant scientists, and, treated with the wonder chemical Colchicine, a tetraploid hybrid has been produced bearing giant five-inch blooms on three-foot stems in yellow, orange, gold, mahogany and bronze, and various combinations of these colors.

While the old Black-eyed Susan flowered in the autumn, her hybrid daughter, called the Glorious Daisy, starts blooming in July an keeps on dishing out glorious blooms until cut down by frost in the late fall. The flowers are excellent for cutting and will last up to 10 days in water.

DOUBLE BLUE

The double blue Cornflower has long been a favorite flower in my garden, especially the dwarf one called Jubilee Gem. Now comes word of a new extra-early kind, flowering at least 20 days sooner than Jubilee gem. The new early Bachelor's Button will be available, not only in the usual cornflower blue, but in white, pink, scarlet, mauve, and a very dark maroon.

In 1954 the Bodger seed farm in California came up with the Peppermint Stick Zinnia, striped like a candy cane. This year they've gone one better and produced — believe it or not — a polka dotted Zinnia.

Watch, too, for a new easy-to-grow race of Dahlias called Fall Festival. These are semi-dwarf, growing around 2½ feet in height, with three to four-inch double flowers in yellow, apricot, orange, crimson and scarlet, and their particular virtue is that they are as easy to raise from seed as a radish.

West Indies Capital

Barbados First Choice

LONDON (Reuters)—Three men who have never lived in the British West Indies suggested Wednesday that the proposed British Caribbean Federation create a federal capital on the Island of Barbados.

Ten of Britain's West Indian colonies, with 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 people, will be linked together when the federation comes into being later this year.

The site of the federal capital is one of the unsolved issues among the "sugar and spice" islands.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd appointed Sir Francis Mudie, Prof. H. Myles Wright and A. E. Cook to study the controversial problem "as wholly impartial persons who have never resided in the West Indies."

They selected Barbados on the basis of availability of non-agricultural land and climate. They also considered the beauty and views they feel a capital should have.

"The capital should be the place which will draw people from all the islands and foster the growth of that West Indian patriotism which is essential if the federation is to be a success or indeed to have any real meaning at all," they said.

Six Cities Affected

Negro Shot As Bus-Seat Trouble Grows

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A policeman shot a Negro who allegedly hurled two segregation screens from a crowded bus and threatened to stab the driver yesterday. The South's bus seating troubles appeared likely to spread to two other cities, making six in all.

But there was no bus service at all in one affected city, Tallahassee, Fla., where Gov. Leroy Collins used his emergency powers to suspend runs to prevent violence.

In Montgomery, Ala., where the turbulence all began two weeks ago when the U.S. Supreme Court ordered an end to segregated seating, a curfew on night bus operations was extended until Jan. 8. The city also voted to hire 20 additional policemen to cope with integration disorders.

CONFLICTING REPORTS

There were conflicting reports as to just what part the racial seating incident played in the New Orleans shooting which sent Frank Jones, 24, to the hospital with a critical wound.

Jones, who was given a 50-50 chance to live, was shot through the spine and the bullet lodged in his back.

Police said patrolman Frank Lovoi shot Jones after the Negro threatened J. Alexander, the bus driver, with a knife and robbed him of his coin changer.

Alexander said he told Jones to "put those signs back in their place" but the Negro instead whipped out a knife "and held it at my throat."

Lovoi and patrolman Lawrence Bayer were on a following bus when they noticed the disturbance on Alexander's bus. They boarded the first bus and Lovoi said the Negro slashed at Bayer with a four-inch knife.

Lovoi said he hit the Negro on the head with his revolver but Jones "kept on fighting," then abruptly tried to flee the bus. It was then he fired at him, the officer said.

Australia's Northern Territory, with a population of about 15,000, covers 523,000 square miles.

Western Radar Starts

OTTAWA (CP) — The western section of the $200,000,000 Mid-Canada radar warning line went into operation on schedule New Year's Day, the defence department said Wednesday.

The western portion of the 3,000-mile line extends from James Bay to the Peace River district of Alberta. The eastern section from James Bay to the Labrador coast will go into operation about the end of February.

An RCAF spokesman said transportation difficulties and bad weather have caused the delay in the eastern sector.

Completion of the Mid-Canada line, built by the Trans-Canada Telephone System under RCAF supervision—Bell Telephone Company was the management contractor—will give North America two of its radar fences. The Pinetree line in Southern Canada, in operation for three years, controls the operations of the jet fighter planes which would intercept southbound bombers.

The third fence, the $400,000,000 DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar fence which extends from Greenland through the Canadian Arctic to the Aleutian Islands, is scheduled to go into operation July 1 this year.

OTTAWA (CP) — A general alarm fire wiped out half a city block in Lower Town Ottawa Wednesday and made homeless about 150 persons in sub-zero weather.

The loss was unofficially estimated at $1,000,000 or more as wind-fed flames destroyed 10 buildings, including two small hotels and an assortment of apartment buildings, rooming houses and small businesses in the By-Ward market area.

Three firemen were injured as most of the city fire department fought the blaze in the capital's oldest section a few blocks east of Parliament Hill.

The collapsing wall of a house caught two firemen; one was pierced in the hip by debris and the other suffered back injuries. A third fireman was taken to hospital to have something removed from his eye.

Billowing clouds of smoke, visible miles away, attracted thousands to the scene in seven-below-zero weather.

All residents of the doomed buildings were reported to have been safely evacuated after the fire broke out in a building used as a supply warehouse by the federal government printing bureau. Cause of the blaze was not immediately known.

Ice-encrusted firemen successfully held the fire to the eastern half of a block bounded on the west and east by Sussex and Parent Streets and on the north and south by Murray and Clarence Streets.

New Guinea

Casualties Heavy In Tribal Battle

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—A fierce tribal battle was reported Wednesday among Papuan tribes in the remote Sepik Mountain area of Australian New Guinea as peace-drums sounded the end of another uprising across the frontier in Dutch New Guinea.

The Australian Broadcasting Commission said that the director of native affairs at Port Moresby had received word that one of his district officers took a patrol into the Sepik area to put down the tribal warfare.

Fighting with heavy casualties was reported from the Telefomin and May River areas in the northwest corner of Eastern New Guinea. Australia governs the eastern half of the big Pacific island and the western part is administered by the Netherlands.

Meanwhile, primitive Papuan tribesmen who massacred a number of persons and burned down American mission buildings across the border in Dutch New Guinea last November now have calmed down and at last word were performing "peace dances."

The University Problem

STUDENTS of the University of British Columbia are preparing an appeal to the government for $15,000,000 largely to provide additional housing and recreation facilities at the Point Grey campus. That is a large sum of money, especially when it is related only to living conditions distinct from the scholastic and operational functions of the university. Of the need for improvement in this direction at UBC there can be no doubt; some 7,000 students are packed there like the proverbial sardines in a can. The students' action however opens up the whole problem of university education in this province.

The present trend of concentrating everything at Point Grey may please UBC administrators, but it is detrimental to true university life. The student body is far too large for the best results. The Point Grey university is fast becoming nothing less than a degree factory on the assembly-line pattern, with professors and students almost as strange to each other, and to themselves, at the end of a term as at the beginning. The intangibles of university life, as important in their own way as lectures and lessons, are lacking for want of the intimacy and atmosphere created by limited enrollments.

In a year or so UBC may be counting student heads in the ten thousand; a future figure of 30,000 has been speculated on by a former education minister. Ten thousand students crammed in one institution is patently absurd—the present 7,000 and their problems of over-crowding make that clear—and the cure obviously lies in the creation of another university. This is inevitable no matter what the special status of Point Grey; the day may be envisaged in fact when more than two universities will be needed if they are to be real centres of learning and not simply swollen aggregations of student entrants.

One presumes that the provincial government is aware of the situation and is giving it earnest study. The student appeal for $15,000,000 for dormitories and the like gives urgency to the idea previously mooted of expanding Victoria College into a full university of degree-awarding status; to begin with limited faculties. This proposal has so much to commend it that doubtless it is receiving consideration by an education department haunted by the nightmare growth of UBC.

As has been pointed out by the Colonist's business editor, Mr. Harry Young, in several articles on the subject, Victoria College is ripe for relieving the Point Grey campus of some of its congestion. The local college already teaches the first two years of the university course—and with better results—and land is available for needed enlargement of facilities. Victoria also has the kind of cap-and-gown atmosphere that Vancouver can never offer to UBC students as well as the close-by accommodation required by those attending a university. Vancouver Island students alone could well sustain the enrollment, and in all probability—because of the type of university which would eventuate here—it would have a selective appeal for students and faculty members alike from elsewhere desirous of university life in this city.

The province can scarcely go on indefinitely pouring students onto the Point Grey campus, there to be swallowed up in an institution grown too unwieldy to be of the best value. Continuation of such a policy means a waste of public money and to no inconsiderable degree of the potentialities of large numbers of the student body.

Driving While Disqualified

MORE and more authorities in North America are inclining towards the view that motorists who continue to drive after their licences have been suspended or revoked will have to be punished with much greater severity than that customarily meted out by the courts at present. The governor of one of the American states advises the confiscation of the car of any driver who does so. From Alberta there are reports that the provincial government is considering a legislative amendment to make prison terms mandatory for that type of offence.

With the British Columbia legislature going into session next month, there is an opportunity for this province to stiffen the punishment, since the courts generally appear reluctant to do so. It is usual for the offence of driving while disqualified to be treated as relatively trivial. In one recent case in B.C. a man convicted of his fifth offence under that section of the highway code was let off with a minor fine. Obviously this lenient attitude towards what is in reality a serious offence offers virtually no deterrent to reckless elements among the driving public.

Confiscation of the car or a jail sentence without the option of a fine, or both, would not be unduly harsh punishment, because the charge is one which can be avoided by simple obedience of the law and respect for the authority of the magistrates or the licensing body. No one caught driving while disqualified can plead inadvertence. It is a conscious act reflecting at worst deliberate defiance, and at best a too-casual attitude towards a motorist's responsibilities. In the extremely unlikely event of a driver forgetting that his licence has been withdrawn it should be plain that he is not a fit person to be allowed to control a dangerous vehicle. This is one offence for which there can be no legitimate excuse, with the sole and rare exception of a situation of dire emergency when a licensed driver is not available.

It has often been said by persons in authority that suspension of licences, potentially one of the strongest deterrents to dangerous driving, is not proving effective because the worst offenders do not take the suspensions seriously, and are not made to by the courts. That might cease to be the case if it were made known that anyone so driving would not be able to wiggle out with a fine and a lecture, but would automatically lose either his car or his liberty.

Buds and Blizzards

EXAMINE the tips of the chestnut tree's branches now and one will find its new foliage ready-wrapped and all ready for delivery at the first real sign of spring. Blizzards may come first—and in Victoria the period Jan. 7 to Jan. 21 is subject to the odd one—but the chestnut trees have taken account of that. The young leaves, with their flower standards in embryo enfolded, are safely encased in a sheathed weather-proof wrapping, waxed and sealed against the north wind and its chill companions. The bud-forming began in November after the trees shed their leaves and is far advanced now.

Interpreting the News

Polish Election Stirs Pot

By ANTHONY CAVENDISH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WARSAW (UP)—The situation in Poland is more serious now than during the fateful weekend in October when Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders flew here as Russian troops stood ready.

That is the view of one highly placed Polish official as the nation prepares for the first free post-war election on Jan. 20.

Wladyslaw Gomulka, who was cheered wildly when he was swept back to power in the events following the Poznan riots, has the task of getting the country back on its economic feet before the tide of national "self-expression" becomes uncontrollable.

* * *

The official who expressed his fears realized only too well, as does Gomulka, that the Soviets banked on giving the Poles sufficient rope to hang themselves.

Gomulka, the man who was the symbol of new found freedom, two months later is the object of grumbling from the people who still have bad living conditions, little food, high prices and unhappy prospects for the near future with worn-out pre-war industrial and farm equipment.

* * *

There are also complaints from students and intellectuals who insist there must be greater political freedom.

At pre-election meetings, these people have been unwilling to back government candidates and insist they must have representatives in Parliament who are in opposition to Gomulka.

There is no doubt that the United Workers (Communist) Party will win. But there is a bitter fight on hand from the contending Peasants Party who have won headway with promises of abolishing compulsory deliveries from farm collectives, reduction of taxes and better equipment and supplies in the building and agriculture industries.

The Gomulka government believes Poland has gone almost as far politically as she can with safety.

* * *

Hemmed in between East Germany and Russia and hamstrung by Soviet trade policies, Gomulka must look to the West, however, for economic help if he is to maintain a lid on the powder keg of new freedom and anti-Soviet feeling. The Poles estimate they need $300,000,000 credit to cope with the economic situation.

Observers here believe the West is wary of doing anything that would lead to a Hungary-type explosion. But the feeling here is that such an uprising is more likely if there is no relief for the poverty plagued country.

* * *

The traditional Polish hatred for the Russians could easily spark a revolt. Gomulka may have to resort to fresh oppression to prevent it.

"How do you let go when you've got hold of a man?"

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

SINCE flags are a fount of national ardor it is not surprising that they arouse emotion. They would fail of their purpose if they did not.

Hence the taut pride of the G.I. when Old Glory was hoisted on Iwo Jima, and the elan of the poilu when the Tricolor flew defiantly over Verdun.

Hence also, apparently, the ire of a federal cabinet minister when he sees . . .

The Union Jack!

* * *

You would read about the incident, on this page, recently, in Gerald Waring's report from Ottawa; how it was that Resources Minister Lesage visited a government experimental station in New Brunswick, and, horror of horrors, found the Jack flying from its flagstaff.

"What's that flag doing up there?" he asked wrathfully.

Right enough, it was the wrong flag. The Canadian Red Ensign—the Red Duster—is the official national flag and that is the banner which should have been waving in the breeze. But Mr. Lesage need scarcely have been so snappy about the matter, even if he were running true to current cabinet form.

A minister, especially one with a gracious Gallic name, should show more aplomb, in public at any rate.

* * *

Now of course his mind might be needled by thought that Canada should, like the United Kingdom itself, have a flag peculiarly its own. So it should; I can sympathize with him there. But he is a member of the agency that has power to adopt a distinctive emblem and so, possibly, he should take his chagrin to Mr. St. Laurent.

Not that I think this would do much good; I have given up hope of seeing a distinctive Canadian national flag in my lifetime. Still and all, why vent his annoyance on the Union Jack when if it is so distasteful the cure for it is in the hands of his own cabinet.

The Jack in any case, surely, is worthy of at least ostensible respect from a minister of the same crown that it shares—even if the Suez affair still rankles on Parliament Hill.

It would be quite difficult to recall, I fancy, any occasion when it, the Union Jack, did Canada any harm; rather the opposite, I should suppose.

* * *

Mr. Lesage forgot one slight detail, too, to wit: that the Red Duster, which he quite properly wants to fly from the experimental station's flagstaff contains a miniature Union Jack in its top left-hand corner.

Rather a waste of temper, then, or let us say temperament, to show annoyance when ordering a big Jack to be pulled down so that a little one could take its place.

Not worth the loss of his ministerial dignity, certainly.

Ah well, the Union Jack has survived many an awkward moment in history; I daresay it will survive Mr. Lesage's displeasure also.

Reports from Ottawa

FOR some time now the government has soft-pedalled saying sharp things in public about the American surplus disposal program, on the principle that you can catch more flies with honey. But privately the government is still "very unhappy," as one top source put it, about what the Yanks are doing.

The Americans' efforts to get rid of their surplus wheat by fire-sale methods are being intensfied rather than eased. The U.S. unloaded 344,000,000 bushels in the last crop year by accepting local currencies, by barter, by lending the money used to buy the wheat, and by outright gifts. This year they expect to push between 400,000,000 and 450,000,000 bushels into foreign markets.

The great anxiety in Ottawa is over what this may do to Canadian sales. Canada weathered the U.S. competition last year very well, exporting an above-average 319,000,000 bushels. Officials "hope" foreign sales this year will top that figure, but of course hopes don't sell wheat.

* * *

The main Canadian complaint is that the Americans have been offering bargain wheat in normal commercial markets wherein both countries could otherwise sell just as much wheat for dollars. Opinion here is that the Americans are not only failing to build up permanent commercial markets for their wheat, but that they are ruining markets for Canada.

Formal protests, which had to be made early in the game to put Canada officially on record and to inform Canadians that their government was seized of the matter, have now largely been abandoned. Instead, quiet and continuing efforts are being made at cabinet minister and official level to dissuade the Americans before they ruin the wheat market for everyone.

This approach reflects appreciation here that loud protests from Canada might make it politically difficult for the U.S. to give ground. The administration in Washington cannot risk being damned by U.S. farmers and the Congress for bending to the wishes of a foreign government. But officials here believe the soft approach already has yielded valuable results. Seemingly the U.S. has abandoned bargain sales conditional upon the purchaser contracting to buy more wheat later at going dollar prices.

* * *

In spite of American plans this year, there is moderate optimism in Ottawa that Canadian sales will be quite respectable. Two reasons for this optimism stem from experience last year: Canada's ability to hold its important "quality" markets like Britain and Japan because of the superiority of Canadian wheat, and Canada's success in selling wheat behind the Iron Curtain, where U.S. bargain wheat does not penetrate.

Other reasons are the success of the U.S. soil bank plan, which is withdrawing land from wheat, and drought in the American southwest, which will reduce the 1957 crop. It is hoped that they add up to the first big break in the U.S. surplus situation, and that they will reduce the pressure responsible for the bargain wheat program.

But there is no cause for complacency. For example, can Britain still afford to reject U.S. bargain wheat and buy Canadian wheat for dollars in the light of Suez and the drain that dollar oil puts on Britain's depleted dollar reserves? And what of Canadian sales to Russia, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Hungary now that new frost is on the pumpkin of East-West relations?

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

ONE of the restaurants in my town which I regularly frequent is a smorgasbord, hot and cold.

For 95 cents you can go in and sit down, establishing your right to a table. You leave your hat on the chair, or your cigarets or a parcel on the table, as a declaration. Then you go to the counter, pick up a plate and proceed to load up at the lavish spread of hors d'oeuvres in the Scandinavian tradition.

The first choice are the hot smorgasbord items, which I usually pass up: fillets of hot fish, macaroni done up in some stinging and jumpy style, wieners, scallops, some sliced hot meat like pot roast.

But then, ah, then, you come to the cold smorgasbord. For 16 feet of counter, you see heaped up such glorious items as smoked fillets of herring, salt fillets of herring, rollmops of herring, vinegar herring. Mountains of potato salad, three-foot platters of sliced salami, sliced liverwurst, blutwurst, ham, veal, lamb. Massive congregations of every kind of sardine you could imagine, smoked, in oil, in wine, in sesame. Haystacks of wonderfully shredded cabbage, living with a salad dressing that takes your breath away. Pyramids of cold baby lima beans. Beet. Anchovies. Onions; onions small, onions large, sliced, pickled, raw, green, red, stuck with toothpicks. I could go on and on.

Indeed, you can go on and on. The 95 cents entitles you to as many rounds as you like. You can go back and back until you drop dead.

Your coffee, your dessert, if any, is extra.

Personally, I am a small eater. I go through only once, and, with the years, I have become choosey, a gourmet, an epicure. With the years, my plateful grows smaller, more select, more onions, more sardines.

But lately the university students whose ivied halls are only three blocks distant have found the place. And they are like to ruin it. One group of five—three boys and two girls—dark, intense, dedicated, maybe New Canadians, perhaps living on a shoestring, come in every day at noon and for 95 cents they load up two, three, four times through, until they are ready to burst. They never take coffee. Their bill is always 95 cents. I have got to know them.

"It is our one meal, each day," they told me, with bright eyes and strange accents. "Breakfast, coffee; supper, coffee and some bread and cheese in our rooms. We are very happy!"

The proprietor isn't. But I told him to be sure and see La Boheme the next time it is played here.

B.C. Notebook

Whirly-Bird Explorers

By PETER BRUTON

FOREST survey crews made a concerted assault on the rugged northlands of British Columbia in 1956, compiling maps and other data summarizing the forest resources of that vast territory which lies inside the Alberta border to the east, the Northwest Territories-Yukon border to the north, the Alaska Panhandle to the west and a southern boundary skirting Meziadin Lake, Finlay Forks, and the Rocky Mountain barrier to Alberta.

Examination of this territory of about 150,000 square miles posed immense problems in transportation and general survey organization.

And the No. 1 workhorse was a helicopter. After studying extensive reports of the survey crews, forest service officials now believe there is absolutely no question that the helicopter is one of the most efficient tools yet used in forest survey. Its greatest value is in country of poor access and with no adequate lake or river landing spots.

Prior to 1956 most of the field effort in forest surveys was expended south of the 56th parallel—a line which crosses the province roughly about as far north as Stewart on the west coast and Fort St. John on the Alberta boundary.

Last summer crews took to the north by land and air, all under the charge of H. M. Pogue and Bob Jones and Bob Wright.

* * *

Several sampling crews camped like gypsies along the Alaska Highway and spent most of their time compiling statistics showing the volume of timber in the various stands, and the rate of decay.

At the same time considerable areas of the forest resources of the north were mapped by air. Aerial forest mapping activities radiated from suitable bases, with government-owned Ansons sweeping low to photograph timber stands.

When a morning flight plan was completed by a two-man crew the aircraft returned to base, where a fresh mapping crew was taken aboard for an afternoon flight.

Each flight plan was carefully designed by laying out the appropriate air photography, which have a scale of 1:31,680, for the areas to be flown and then marking on them examination points in forest and non-forest types. The plane then flew over the various points selected and various timber stand characteristics were recorded on special forms.

It was found that accurate forest classification and mapping from the air demanded consistent ground checking by crews who built up a valuable backlog of experience in type of timber identification.

* * *

Despite a series of delays caused by bad weather conditions, the air mappers had a highly successful summer and are now engaged in the formidable task of producing forest maps from the vast store of information collected and from some 45,000 air photographs taken.

Forest sampling to provide essential information on volumes in forest stands is integrated with the job of mapping these stands. This "cruising" phase of the over-all inventory job was accomplished by numerous two-man sampling crews who proceeded in 10-league-strides by Land Rover, aircraft, helicopter, and river boat across the face of B.C.'s little-known north.

Wide dispersal of forest samples was emphasized, and transportation problems were accordingly great.

From a base camp near Dawson Creek crews travelled by car and on foot to work in the stands extending up to Mile 630 on the Alaska Highway, and flew into Rocky Mountain lakes to sample forest types in the headwaters of the rivers. In addition heavy stands of timber were found and sampled during river travel up the Peace River west of Gold Bar.

Despite the acute problem of mechanical maintenance the work proceeded at a rapid pace, and soon another base was established at Finlay Forks.

* * *

From Finlay Forks a fast-moving helicopter operation was directed, which probed deep into the otherwise inaccessible back country nearby. Using this highly efficient and popular means of transportation, six crews accomplished in a matter of days forest sampling which would have taken many weeks on foot.

The saving in time and money was outstanding for this particular project which, because of the lack of landing spots, could not have been undertaken by conventional aircraft.

The copter was particularly valuable in landing crews at the head of valleys which ran parallel to the Rocky Mountain trench, and in one case saved a 50-mile pack trip by lifting men over the divide and dropping them on suitable river sand bars and other safe landing spots. Frequently men were landed on ridge-tops, whence they made their way down to the valleys sampling stands or near rivers where the men drifted downstream on rubber rafts.

Forest service officials were lyrical when speaking about the advantages of the whirly-bird.

Letters to the Editor

Old Dough-Heads

By all means let us be concerned enough about the rising cost of seating accommodation in schools and do something about it, but let us not deprive children of seats in the modern halls of learning.

True, our educators, by which I include all adults, may be turning out "half-baked, conceited little dough-heads," but it may be because we adults are even less than half-baked, and even more conceited on dough-heads. The young are continuously learning from those about them. They are only an exaggeration of our not-so-noble selves. Imagine how much worse they could be were it not for the moderating and restraining influence of our schools!

I have no children at school—but am glad to pay the tax, knowing these children will have a chance to learn something of safety, responsibility and socially-acceptable behavior, seeing the parents lack the will or ability to teach them.

By the way, I see that only about one-third of my property tax is for schools. Suppose we divide that by 10. How many parents think that too much to pay a sitter per month to take their children off their hands for as many hours as the school does? I am glad to pay it just to keep them off the street part time. How many think they can hire a private tutor for that sum to prepare their young hopefuls for life in a modern world? Some parents I know have to teach their own and find correspondence courses very time-consuming indeed.

The hope for all of us, both young and old, lies in more education. We have been barely scratching the surface. Let us investigate costs—that is education, too—but let us not grudge the youngsters pleasant, spacious surroundings in which to acquire theirs.

(Mrs.) K. DIXON.

Division of Effort

In view of the fact that it is proposed to submit the school by-law to the voters again in the near future, and that entirely insufficient reliable information seems available to the average voter to enable them to judge for themselves, and therefore be able to cast an intelligent vote, would it be possible to conduct an investigation of all school buildings in the district and issue an unbiased and honest report, giving full details of the area of each school devoted solely to:

1. The study of reading, writing, arithmetic, history, geography, English, French, and government, municipal, provincial and dominion;

2. The study of all other subjects, not included in the above list.

Such an effort should be appreciated, and assist considerably in good government.

Good Samaritans

On behalf of Mrs. E. Musgreave, 837 Hereward Road, I would like to express sincere thanks for the news item in Friday's Colonist, Dec. 28, regarding her lost purse.

Many people telephoned offering assistance, and two gentlemen came to the door to give her $10. Neither would leave his name and the second did not even give her the opportunity to explain that she had received the first gift. She is very grateful for all the kindness shown her during the past few days, and we who know her feel that she well deserves the gifts. Her long life has been spent in helping others.

Due to the fact that there was no accommodation in hospital for patients like Mr. Musgreave, his wife has had to care for him herself for three months, day and night. This is not easy for a woman almost 80 and as a result she has suffered physically and both are now in hospital.

There was only one unfortunate incident to mar Mrs. Musgreave's happiness and that was the unjustified and brutal sarcasm of one telephone caller who felt she must say, "My, how smart you were to lose your purse just before Christmas!"

(Mrs.) R. D. THORNBURN.

Lunar Lacuna

It is rather amazing that no news to date—knowingly—has been issued about the great activity that is going on on the moon.

We have read and heard much about flying saucers and other strange phantasm in the etherial regions. On Dec. 25, 26, and 27 it was thrilling to watch the moon, with the naked eye, and witness the dark machinery that was driving sections—in canoe or crescent shape—into certain positions; occasionally one section would slip away into the surrounding darkness, then a perfect replica would move in and take up the vacant place; then the dark machinery would emerge again and the whole space of the moon consist of what is known as quarters, but clearly defined and all bent and fitted in place to face the west.

About six months ago, at full moon, one could distinctly see the cavities or craters in the moon which gave only the appearance of a world map with the cavities filling the same position as the ocean does on our own world map.

It would be interesting to know if you have received any other communication regarding the "unknown."

Students Win Support

Holding the first sheets of signatures collected early yesterday by UBC and Victoria College students seeking government aid for university facilities are Sheila Hardie and Allan Thackray. With 400 other students they are hoping to sign up 35,000 residents of Victoria in a whirlwind petition-circulating "blitz" which winds up tonight. Petition supports student demand for $15,000,000 of provincial money for new dormitories, laboratories and classrooms at UBC. —(Colonist Photo by Jim Ryan.)

New List of QCs Includes Names of Four City Lawyers

Four Victoria lawyers are among 23 members of the B.C. legal profession who were appointed Queen's Counsel by the provincial cabinet yesterday.

The appointments were the first made since 1950.

Victoria lawyers appointed QCs were:

Gordon Arthur Cameron, a past president of the B.C. Progressive Conservative Association, who is a partner in the law firm of Cameron and Cameron.

Former Oak Bay Reeve R. A. Wootton of the law firm of Manzer, Wootton and Drake.

Assistant Deputy Attorney-General Gilbert P. Hogg, who was formerly legislative counsel.

Harry Joseph Crane, registrar of Victoria land registry office for the past 35 years and inspector of legal offices in the attorney-general's department.

Under the King's Counsel Act, five QCs may be appointed annually.

Despite the backlog of seven vacancies Attorney-General Robert Bonner said it was doubtful whether any more lawyers would be made QC's during the next two years.

Charles W. Brazier, of Vancouver, B.C.'s permanent freight rate counsel; P. R. Brissenden, Vancouver; Ernest B. Bull, Vancouver; George F. Curtis, dean of UBC's law faculty; Victor L. Dryer, Vancouver; Leonard St. M. DuMoulin, Vancouver; James Gordon Lindsay, Vernon; Oscar Lundell, Vancouver; Meredith McQuarrie, New Westminster; Frederick G. Munroe, New Westminster; Thomas E. H. Ellis, Vancouver; Donald C. Fillmore, Kelowna; Hubert B. King, Prince George; reeve of West Vancouver; William Arthur Schultz, Vancouver; David Verchere, Kamloops; and Kenneth Yule, Vancouver.

GREAT BRIDGE

The longest bridge in Europe stretches two miles between the Danish islands of Zealand and Falster.

Buying a new car is a big item; an investment of a lot of hard-earned money. Yet, have you ever considered how much protection you get for all the money you spend?

Your regular Factory Warranty covers 90 days; but chances are you will be paying for your car a long time after that. Wouldn't you feel a lot more secure if you had guaranteed protection for 3 years or 30,000 miles of driving, over and above the regular Factory Warranty?

Of course you would and that's exactly what you get when you buy your new Plymouth or Chrysler from Olson Motors Ltd., Yates at Cook. ***

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans raced up about four cents to pace an advancing grain market.

Buying was touched off by the prospects of an expanded foreign economic aid program and an expected presidential request to Congress to permit use of American troops in the Middle East if that should be necessary.

Other factors helping the market were dry weather in the winter wheat belt and expectations of export business in wheat.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange reflected seasonal dullness and the effects of the rail strike.

Many traders were on the sidelines awaiting some clarification that grain could be moved into export positions. Export orders were withdrawn until such arrangements could be made.

Flax had moderately active trade with some American selling. Prices showed a firm tone but offerings were irregular.

A quiet oats and barley trade revealed small commercial demand.

Trail Faces Major Crisis In CPR Strike

TRAIL, B.C. (BUP)—This city of 30,000, site of the rld's largest non-ferrous metal smelter, faces possible jor unemployment as a result of the country-wide ke against the Canadian Pacific Railway.

An immediate layoff of ne 125 employees was fore- t at Trail yesterday by of- ials of Consolidated Mining d Smelting Company. The ike also threatened the ployment of 1,700 workers the firm's Sullivan mine d concentrator at nearby mberly.

R. D. Perry, vice-president d general manager of Com- o, said every effort would made to keep the com- ny's plants working.

However, he predicted "un- oidable" major layoffs thin one week if the l strike continued.

Cominco's fertilizer plant Trail, which employs some) men, can operate for only few days" without ship- nts of ammonia from Cal- ry.

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — gus Thomas, manager of e Penticton office of the tional Employment Ser- e, said all claims for un- ployment insurance aris- g from the CPR strike will ruled on at Ottawa.

He said this practice will followed to insure that all ims are given a similar aring.

* * *

WINNIPEG (CP) — Not wheel turned in the Win- peg CPR yards, biggest in e world operated by a gle company, after more an 500 men went on strike. Firemen wearing their dis- tive big-peaked caps, arched as pickets beside g lines of idle railway rs.

ORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) A spokesman for elevator erators at the Lakehead said ednesday layoffs at grain evators will run to 25 per nt of total personnel as a sult of the CPR strike.

The layoffs will probably gin toward the end of this ek.

Some 1,200 persons in Fort illiam, with a monthly pay- roll of $357,000, will be affected.

* * *

EDMONTON (BUP) — Re- actions to the CPR strike were varied throughout Alberta yesterday, with most officials saying they did not think the strike would greatly affect them unless it was prolonged.

About 7,500 CPR employees are affected by the lay-off order for the duration of the strike—some 1,000 of them in the Edmonton division.

Economically, the greatest danger was foreseen for the farmers, who will not be able to move their grain shipments.

* * *

MONTREAL (CP) — Tele- graph offices located in CPR stations closed by the firemen's strike have been shut down, but outside offices and other facets of the Canadian Pacific Communications sys- tem have not been affected, CPR officials said Wednesday night.

The strike will have its greatest effect in small com- munities where telegraph of- fices are in railway stations, a CPR spokesman said.

* * *

VANCOUVER (CP) — Iso- lated communities along the CPR's Kettle Valley line, not accessible by road, will obtain essential food and medical services by speeder operation, a CPR spokesman said. Hun- dreds of families along the 500-mile rail line depend en- tirely on the railway for food and mail deliveries.

The speeders will be oper- ated by non-union company officials.

Larger communities along the line will have to depend on truck transport for food deliveries.

* * *

VANCOUVER (CP) — CPR officials said here track pa- trols will continue regular in- spections for the duration of the strike.

The patrol men will watch for slides and other damage. Snow plows will keep lines open in mountainous areas.

C. D. Howe

Last-ditch attempt by acting prime minister C. D. Howe failed to prevent CPR firemen's strike. He wired appeals to company and union heads to resume collapsed negotiations, but both factions turned down his compromise proposal.

Fleet of 75,000

Trucks Set to Go!

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Trucking Associations said Wednesday the nation's trucking industry is ready to meet the transport emergency resulting from the strike of CPR firemen.

Curtis Bonnyman of Moncton, N.B., president of the 7,000-member body, said in a statement issued here:

"We are ready—with a fleet of 75,000 public vehicles, combined with plans which we have made for the present emergency."

The statement said the trucking industry's fleet, combined with more than 845,000 trucks owned by firms providing their own transport, "will see the nation through the present emergency."

"Food, medical supplies and other urgent priority shipments essential to human life come first in the trucking industry's plans," the statement added. "Next will come the shippers who regularly use our services."

The association's members are mostly in intercity traffic with some in local business. Runs extend as long as between Montreal and Vancouver.

Pinball Case Sentence Suspended

A good probation report won for Donald McAlpine, 2017 Quadra, a suspended sentence in city police court yesterday.

McAlpine had been charged with operating a gaming house in connection with seizure by police of five pinball machines at the Quadra Street address.

Donald Anderson, defence counsel, who during trial stated that McAlpine had no direct concern with the machines, yesterday spoke against an order for their confiscation.

Confiscation was ordered, however, by Magistrate Henry C. Hall, as well as seizure of the money contained in the machines. The five massive games, whose value was placed by Mr. Anderson at $5,000, will not be destroyed before Jan. 31.

Estranged Husband Held in Logger's Death

Duncan Man Charged With Murder

MONA SYMES
. . . her screams followed shot

PAUL RICHARD POWLING
. . . New Year's murder victim

DUNCAN — The year opened here on a note of tragedy with the early-morning gun-slaying of Paul Richard Powling, 25, in the bed-living room of his New Year's Eve companion, Mrs. Mona Symes.

Thomas Sidney Symes, 31, estranged husband of Mrs. Symes, was charged with murder in Duncan police court yesterday before Magistrate Col. A. C. Sutton.

He was remanded without plea until Jan. 9. Duncan lawyer A. I. MacDonald will defend the accused and another Duncan lawyer, Robert Harvey, will act as crown counsel.

Symes was arrested Sunday afternoon about 1 p.m. when he gave himself up to RCMP officers. Police had launched a seven-hour manhunt which saw 20 Island police officers and the man-tracking police dog from Parksville taking part.

The murder, it is believed, took place about 5.30 a.m. Tuesday before the eyes of the young blonde wife, who is employed as a proofreader and office clerk with the Cowichan Leader.

"It was the quietest New Year's Eve we had ever spent," Mrs. J. A. Otto, operator of the rooming house at 161 Herbert Street where Mrs. Symes had rented a room in the front of the house on Boxing Day.

Around 1.30 we heard someone come in and we assumed it was Mrs. Symes.

"We were awakened by an awful bang, which to us sounded like the house had exploded," she continued.

"We jumped out of bed and heard her screaming. She was at the phone trying to call an ambulance, but she was too hysterical."

Mrs. Otto said her husband, Julius, called the ambulance and the police.

"We went to the room with her, and he (Powling) was laying on an angle across the bed with his feet over the side," she said.

"Blood was running down his shirt below his heart. Both were fully clothed."

The Ottos purchased the house in October and Mrs. Symes was one of the first tenants to move in after renovations.

Powling and Symes, both loggers, were reported to have been friends and were seen together with a group of loggers on New Year's Eve afternoon in Duncan.

Mrs. Symes is reported to have been separated from her husband for about a month.

They have a three-year-old son, Ronnie, who had been left with grandparents on New Year's Eve and is now being cared for by relatives.

Powling was dead on arrival at King's Daughters' Hospital about 6.15 a.m. Tuesday. Hospital attendants said Mrs. Symes accompanied him to hospital.

Police recovered what is believed to be the murder weapon early Tuesday morning. They would not say what kind of a gun it was, but it is understood to have been a rifle.

An Island-wide alert was sounded after the murder was discovered and about 20 RCMP officers from Duncan, Ladysmith, Chemainus, Lake Cowichan, Shawnigan Lake, with identification experts from Victoria, took part in the intensive combing of the Duncan district.

FOUND BY FRIEND

It was a friend of Symes who finally located him in Duncan and persuaded him to report to police.

Yesterday afternoon he was whisked away under police escort to Oakalla prison where he will stay until he appears in Duncan court again next Wednesday.

Symes was born in Duncan in 1925 and is a member of a well-known Duncan family. He had been working for a logging operator on Thurlow Island, but had been off work for the past month.

Powling was born in Edam, Sask., on Aug. 1, 1931, but had lived in the Cowichan area for about 16 years. His stepfather and mother are Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Ianson, formerly of Duncan, now of Campbell River. He has a brother, Norman, living in the Cowichan district.

The dead man was reported to have been separated from his wife. He was on Christmas leave from the Meade Creek logging operations of Western Forest Industries.

[illegible] about four years ago when she was married. She had previously lived in Vancouver for five years and her home was on the Prairies.

Yesterday she stayed with friends at the same place where Powling had lived since October.

RCMP still are investigating.

Cumberland Mine Victim Inquest to Be Held Tonight

CUMBERLAND — An inquest will be held tonight into the death of a 39-year-old fire boss in a rock and coal fall at T'Sable River coal mine Monday.

Frank Edward Dixon died of internal injuries and a broken pelvis in Cumberland Hospital three hours after he was crushed in a mine roof cave-in as he prepared a dynamite charge.

A veteran of 20 years of mining, he leaves a wife and five children at Cumberland.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m at Piercy's Funeral Home. Interment will be in Cumberland cemetery.

MINER INJURED

Also injured was miner John Shaw, 43, of Cumberland, who was caught on the edge of a cave-in and suffered a broken leg.

An inquiry was conducted by W. Johnstone, manager of Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Ltd., yesterday.

A fellow worker, Sylvio Strussi, dug away rocks and timbers with his bare hands to free Dixon.

Strussi said rock, coal and timber fell on Dixon "without any warning at all."

He avoided injury by hugging the mine face.

"After everything stopped falling and the noise died down I hear Frank's voice. I dug with my bare hands, and don't know yet how I moved a rock near his head. Ordinarilly it would have taken two men to move it."

Couple Loses Home In New Year's Blaze

DUNCAN — The $15,000 home of Mr. and Mrs. George Maggs, of Maple Bay, was destroyed by fire during the couple's absence at a New Year's Eve dance at Maple Bay Yacht Club.

Their daughter was spending the night in Duncan. The house and its entire contents was destroyed. Maple Bay firemen battled the blaze for hours and prevented it from spreading to nearby homes. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

AYLMER TREAT OF THE WEEK

Quick... easy... and mighty good!

You know how good Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice is as a breakfast eye-opener or as a meal starter. But do you know there are *dozens of other ways to use it? This Tomato Aspic, for one. Hearty enough to please your men folk, it's glamorous enough to serve when the "girls" come for lunch. Of course, it tastes good because it calls for Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice!

What makes this one juice so tasty? This. Only very special tomatoes, "babied" from the time they're seeds to the time they grow perfect red-ripe, are tenderly squeezed to juice. Then a special recipe is used so the juice stays the same delightful consistency from top to bottom of the can. Always the same. Just chill—serve—and enjoy. Keep several cans of Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice on hand—always.

TOMATO ASPIC
(Makes 8 servings)

3½ cups (11½ twenty-ounce cans) Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice
2 tablespoons gelatine
1 bay leaf
1 to 2 stalks celery (include tops)
1 tablespoon scraped onion
1½ teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon vinegar

Soften gelatine in ½ cup of the cold Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice. Simmer together remaining tomato juice, bay leaf, celery, onion, sugar and salt, for 10 minutes. Strain. There should be 2½ cups of liquid. Add softened gelatine and remaining ingredients. Stir until gelatine has dissolved. Pour into ring mould. Chill until firm. To serve, unmould and fill centre with a creamy potato salad. Surround mould with cold sliced meat. A most delicious lunch or supper!

*More tasty treats with Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice

NIPPY NIGHT SPECIAL. When it's cold outside, be warm inside with hot tomato juice. Just heat Aylmer "Sunshine" Tomato Juice. Serve in mugs. Garnish with popcorn.

Use as part of the liquid in gravies and meat pies. Use as the liquid in making tea biscuits and dumplings.

For spiced Tomato Juice, add your choice of lemon juice, a dash of Tabasco, or Worcestershire, or horseradish, or cayenne pepper.

Fullmer Dethrones Sugar Ray With Relentless Body Attack

NEW YORK (AP) — Gene Fullmer, a bull-necked mauler from Utah's copper mines, floored 36-year-old Sugar Ray Robinson and cut his left eye with his relentless attack Wednesday night to win the world middleweight championship on a unanimous decision in a fierce 15-round battle.

The brawling Fullmer dropped the Sugar Man with a crashing left-right barrage to the body in the seventh round and Robinson fell on his back on the ring apron.

He scrambled back at six while the sellout crowd of 18,134 which paid $194,645 roared.

STURDY WARRIOR

Although Fullmer's tactics of slamming away with a free hand after charging into a clinch drew some boos, the big tourout found the new champion a sturdy warrior with the youth and strength to brush off the biggest bombs of the aging Robinson.

After both men tumbled in the sixth round, one of the ring ropes was pulled loose from the post. A hurry-up repair job left the bottom strand sagging for the next four rounds.

When the same strand came loose on another side of the ring at the end of the 10th round, the New York State Athletic Commission ordered Referee Ruby Goldstein to proceed without the bottom rope on two sides of the ring. They fought that way the rest of the night.

SLAMS TO BODY

Referee Goldstein let Fullmer, a swarming body puncher, bang away with his free right hand in the clinches, always slamming to the body.

Fullmer opened a cut over Robinson's left eye in the seventh and tore open a gash under the same eye in the 14th. In the last two rounds, Ray's face was streaked with blood.

Fullmer won handsomely on all three official cards. Judge Frank Forbes had it 10-5, Judge Harold Barnes 9-6 and referee Goldstein 8-5-2. The Associated Press card was 9-6 for Fullmer, who went into the ring at even money after having been the favorite since the match first was made.

Fighting for only 12½ per cent of the purse and none of the $100,000 radio-TV money, Fullmer opened up a lead in the early rounds, shook off a Robinson rally and closed strong in the 10th, 13th and 14th with enough margin to offset a 15th-round desperation spurt by Sugar Ray.

The 25-year-old from West Jordan, Utah, who is an apprentice welder in a Utah copper mine, simply proved too strong for Robinson at this stage of his career.

TOUGH IN CLINCHES

Although Fullmer gave weight to Robinson, he manhandled him in the clinches. He tucked his head under Ray's chin and climbed all over him at close range.

Robinson, always looking for the chance to end it quickly with one flashing flurry of punches, was wobbled in the sixth, eighth and 14th rounds. Every time Robinson stung Fullmer with his best punches, the slope-shoulder Utah lad would come back rushing.

Wings Again Pass Bruins; Hall Gains Third Shutout

Detroit Red Wings last night gained the National Hockey League lead for the third time within a week, blanking the Maple Leafs, 2-0, at Toronto behind the fine goaling of Glen Hall, who had to work hard for his third shutout of the season.

Victory, before a crowd of 12,615, moved Wings one point ahead of the stubborn Boston Bruins, who regained the lead Tuesday by beating New York Rangers, 5-3, on Boston ice.

	P	W	L	T	GF	GA	Pts
Detroit	35	20	8	7	103	76	47
Boston	37	21	10	6	101	87	48
Montreal	36	18	12	5	115	77	41
New York	35	11	17	7	78	104	29
Toronto	36	11	18	7	84	95	29
Chicago	36	4	24	8	71	109	20

Last night's scores: Detroit 2 at Toronto 0.

Tuesday's scores: Montreal 6 at Toronto 2; New York 3, at Boston 5.

Next game: tonight, Chicago at Montreal

In Tuesday's other game, Jean Beliveau led Montreal Canadiens to an easy 6-2 win over the Black Hawks, at Chicago.

SECOND STRAIGHT

Last night's game was close-checking and inclined to be dull for long moments at a time. Rookie of the year last season, Hall made some tremendous stops to get his second successive shutout.

He had blanked New York Rangers, 1-0, on Monday.

Johnny Bucyk, another Western Hockey League alumnus, scored the only goal Hall was to need late in the second period just as rookie Al MacNeil stepped back on the ice after serving a Toronto penalty.

Gordie Howe wrapped it up with his 25th goal of the season in the third period. The big rightwinger took Ted Lindsay's pass and stickhandled in close before letting loose a low, hard drive.

The goal marked the eighth consecutive season that Howe has scored at least 25 goals. With 35 games, exactly half of the schedule, left, Howe has a chance to equal or better the NHL record of 50 goals in a season, set by Maurice Richard in the 50-game 1944-45 season.

THREATENS RECORD

But Howe also has a record in jeopardy—his mark of 95 points in a season, set in 1952-53. Beliveau now has 55 points from 36 games and at that pace will wind up as the first player to get more than 100 NHL points in a season.

Beliveau scored two unassisted goals on Tuesday and added an assist to boost his lead to eight points over Howe, who cut it to seven points last night.

Americans Again on Rampage

Seattle Americans may not be able to match the record of 302 goals scored by the 1949-50 Tacoma Rockets but at the scoring pace they have been setting for the past four games they'll certainly set another Western Hockey League standard.

Back at early-season form since losing, 4-1, to the Cougars here on Dec. 21, the Americans last night won their fourth straight game as they thumped Vancouver Canucks, 7-1, at Seattle.

Americans now have scored 30 goals in the last four games—defeating New Westminster, 7-2, Vancouver by 9-2 and 7-1, and the Cougars by 7-4.

Eddy Dorohoy set the pace last night, scoring his 12th, 13th and 14th goals of the season and picking up an assist.

REACHES MILESTONE

George Senick, Dorohoy's left-winger, scored twice to become fourth player in WHL history to score more than 200 goals. Senick, who also had an assist, now has 201 goals for his WHL career.

Guyle Fielder picked up three assists to boost his league-leading total to 68 points from 36 games, a pace fast enough to wipe out the old record of 110 points, held by Bronco Horvath.

Meanwhile, in other games last night, New Westminster Royals made it two in a row for their Prairie trip by knocking off the Regals, 6-5, in an overtime game at Brandon and Winnipeg Warriors started a road trip with a 4-2 win over the Stampeders at Calgary.

RALLY TO TIE

Royals, moving into a second-place tie with the Canucks in the Western Division, trailed by 3-1 and 5-2 before whipping through for the last three goals of regulation time to force overtime.

Gordie Fashoway, who scored Royals' first goal, was the big man in the rally. The high-scoring leftwinger helped Bob Bergeron with the 5-3 goal and after Denny Olson had made it 5-4, Fashoway streaked in on a break to tie it up.

Veteran Bobby Love scored one of his frequent goals after less than two minutes of overtime, whizzing a 25-footer past Luke Dechene.

It was only the third time this season that Regals had lost on home ice. The Brandon club, however, unearthed a coming star in Ted Hampson, captain of the junior Flin Flon Bombers who was up on a one-game trial.

Leading scorer in the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, Hampson moved into faster company with a goal and two assists.

Winning their second game out of the last 18, Warriors got a goal apiece from George Ford and Gordie Redahl, two Vancouver discards.

Star of the game, however, was Winnipeg goalkeeper Gerry MacNamara, who stopped 18 of 19 shots in the first period to keep his club in the game. Many of his saves were on the sensational side.

Maloney, Overtime Jinx Again Cougar Downfall

Victoria Cougars ran afoul of two old jinxes at Vancouver on Tuesday night—overtime play and Phil Maloney, the starry centre of the Canucks who has padded his point total almost every time the clubs have met.

Cougars took 2-0 and 3-2 leads before losing, 4-3, in extra time. It was their eighth overtime game of the season and they have still to win one. They have managed four ties, lost four times. In addition, they have lost five other games by one goal.

Maloney was again the main figure in the Cougar setback. He scored Canucks second goal to tie the game for the first time, tied it at 3-3 in the third period, then set up Earl Johnson for the winning goal after six minutes and 50 seconds of the extra period.

Earlier, in the first period, Doug Anderson gave the Cougars a working lead when he scored his 16th and 17th goals only six seconds apart.

Canucks, who started the game with 13 players and decided to do without rookie Ald Cadman after the first period, didn't buckle. Gordie Hudson cut the margin in two late in the first period with a blue line pass. Then, Maloney took Hugh Currie's pass to tie midway through the second period.

Bruce Carmichael put Cougars ahead early in the third period but Maloney was back 50 seconds later with the classiest goal of the game, his 25th of the season.

...uture No Worry for Kansas Hoop Sensation

(This is the second of two articles by Pete Waldmeir of the Dallas Times-Herald on the hoop exploits of Wilt Chamberlain, tabbed by many as potentially the greatest in the history of basketball.)

...AWRENCE, Kans.—Think ... you like, Wilt Chamber-...n is not yet the greatest ...ic figure ever to cross ...0 miles of rolling farm-... west from Kansas City ...awrence.

...e has a way of obscur-...ings. A catchy nickname, ...Wilt the Stilt, can dim ...colorful figures who have ... most significant contri-...ns to Kansas' limestone-...d campus.

... of America's greatest ...rs — Glenn Cunningham ...Wes Santee strode ex-...ng miles over the sur-rounding countryside while they were students.

"Cloudburst Clyde" Lovelette and B. H. Born were not pre-season selections for All-America in their sophomore years, but they certainly rated as high as the Stilt when they played basketball in the old gym high on the hill.

If he remains at Kansas, Wilt is likely to be the best of the best. He lives fast, but his a serious streak that makes him a curious case.

Last Christmas Wilt drove over to an orphanage at Leavenworth, Kas., to play with the kids.

Your first impression of the seven-foot centre is that he won't last at Kansas. "He'll get tired of this kid stuff," you reason. "He'll turn pro before he graduates."

It's possible, although he can't play for a national basketball association team until his class graduates in 1959. As insurance against that time, the Philadelphia Warriors already have drafted him.

The Harlem Globetrotters have approached him and been turned down. A year at Kansas could change his mind.

One of 11 children, Wilt is the third Negro ever to play basketball for Kansas. The second is his current teammate, senior Maurice King. It is common knowledge that he came here, for one thing, because he feels he can help his race.

Is he intelligent? Is he funny? Can he do anything else but play basketball? Only the answer to the last question is cloudy.

Wilt knows basketball. He's a student of the game. He has played against some of the nation's best while vacationing from classes at Philadelphia's Overbrook High and come away a lot tougher and a lot smarter.

They say he's preparing for law school in a business course. For a 19-year-old, he's articulate and sensitive to attention.

Harp explains his class work: "He's like most kids. He doesn't study enough. He's behind in his accounting, so we've cancelled all future dates for publicity stories and photos."

Harp dislikes comparing him with Bill Russell, 6-foot-10 centre for San Francisco last year, except to class him with Russell as a "leader."

"Like Russell, Wilt is the kind of guy you need on a ball club that has a chance to go all the way to the national championship," he said. "Russell kept San Francisco loose all through its long winning streak. The Stilt can do that, too. He's confident of victory every night."

It's doubtful that, by nature of the stake, Kansas has in him. Wilt ever will flunk out. Track Coach Bill Easton may gain another top performer too.

"Wilt could be a seven-foot high jumper, like Charlie Dumas," Easton remarked, "if he wants to work at it.

"Last spring I found him practising jumping in the fieldhouse in tennis shoes. I had to have track shoes made for him (size 15). He took only two steps to the bar, but jumped over 6.5 as an unattached entry in the conference meet last spring. He also put the shot more than 50 feet.

"Wilt is strong and has good co-ordination, but it depends on Wilt how good he can be. Russell was a good high jumper and could have done well, but he didn't want to work."

THIS LAND OF OURS!
Look about you. Look thoughtfully at the world in which you live. In the centre of this wide and stirring stage there stands a nation newly come to greatness.
It wears its new mantle well. Already, its reputation stands high and its voice is heard respectfully. It is a ringing voice, speaking with vigor and clearly sounding a call of progress and achievement to all men of enterprise.
This is a nation that symbolizes freedom in action—and its accomplishments today merely foreshadow what is to come. The products of its fertile fields, its vast forests and wind-whipped seas indicate, in their abundance, the potential of a land which is only just beginning to reach its full stature.
This is a nation of industry and commerce—of progressive people working hard and willingly to create all those things which enrich our living and typify, in themselves, the rewarding pattern of existence to which all men aspire.
This is a nation of peace-loving people, of friendly and hospitable people who cultivate those attitudes of heart and mind that tend toward horizons ever brighter—ever greater—ever more inspiring.
This is a happy land, a land without fear, without hate—a land of many peoples united in a deep and timeless love of all their country represents.
It is a youthful land, a hopeful land—and its name is Canada.

Winter Job Picture Brightest in Years

★ ★ ★

BY DAVID FRANCIS

With more than $213,687,000 of heavy construction proposed or under way on Vancouver Island, Victoria trade union leaders are bubbling with optimism on the employ ment situation for the new year.

"This is the best winter we have had for at least five years," said Cliff Parker, business agent for International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 115.

He added that a "serious shortage" of skilled trades men would develop toward summer as weather allowed a constructive speed-up.

Lots of Jobs

It would have meant a lot of work he said. "Now there also will be a shortage of school space."

Brings Own Temple

Giant Hindu Monk Here on Leave

Kneeling in front of a miniature temple which accompanies him wherever he goes, is Swami Agehananda Bharati, a Viennese-born abbott of the Saanyasi order of Hindu monks. Swami Agehananda is visiting his mother, Mrs. M. Fisher, 1120 Blanshard, for the first time in several years. He is the first Indian monk to visit the Canadian Pacific. (Photo by Paul Hosefros)

Vienna-Born Swami Visits Mother in City

By TED SHACKLEFORD

A [illegible] and Viennese who spoke three Indian languages at the age of [illegible] renounced orthodox Roman Catholicism at 17, served with an Indian unit in the German [illegible] and [illegible] a Hindu [illegible] after the war is in Victoria visiting his mother.

Swami Agehananda Bharati, six feet seven inches tall and 280 pounds in weight, and wearing thick-lensed glasses and conventional clothes, looks more like the man who was born Leonard Fisher in Vienna in 1924 than the abbott of a monastery in north-west India.

[illegible]

At present Swami Agehananda is staying with his mother, Mrs. M. Fisher, 1120 Blanshard. His room shows a contrast between West and East with his robes and a miniature temple and pictures of Indian deities on the walls and a modern German miniature camera on the dressing table.

[illegible]

Questioned Students

[illegible]

By the time he was 13 he could speak Hindi, the official language of India, Urdu, and Sanskrit, the ancient language of scholars.

[illegible]

After the war, in 1948, Leonard Fisher made the move he had been considering for some years — he went to India and joined the Saanyasi order of monks, the only white man among 110,000 Indian members of the sect.

[illegible]

Leonard Fisher was given the name of Agehananda [illegible] "[illegible] path" [illegible]

No Mean Challenge

[illegible]

From the University of Benares Swami Agehananda went to the University of Nalanda, North India, then the Calcutta University and last year he taught Sanskrit, Pali and comparative philosophy with religion at the Mahamukuty Buddhist Academy at Bangkok, Thailand.

[illegible]

This is his first visit to the West since 1948. His immediate objective is to complete a book he began in Asia, but Swami Agehananda hopes to lecture at Canadian universities. He is already in touch with McGill University.

A mother anxiously watches her child in the border camp, too worried to sleep. Children were given sleeping pills to keep them quiet to avoid Russians and mothers worried that they had given too much a dose. Workers walked the older children at night to keep them awake.

Teenagers Love Frankfurter Loaf

Getting back to normal? Well, never up, it takes a little time [illegible] Christmas season is over till two [illegible] night and that's not until January [illegible] parties are on the menu of the day, especially for the younger set before they [illegible] college [illegible]

FRANCES THOMPSON

FRANKFURTER LOAF

[illegible]

Cook the macaroni in plenty of boiling salted water. Drain well and add all the other ingredients except the frankfurters. Mix lightly. Grease a large loaf pan or two ordinary sized ones. Cover the bottom of the pan with part of the macaroni mixture. Add a layer of frankfurters, placing them lengthwise in the pan. Cover with macaroni and repeat the process. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, until the custard-like mixture is set.

[illegible]

RAISIN CORN BREAD

[illegible]

Sift together all the dry ingredients. Add the lightly beaten egg and milk. Stir lightly until blended, then add the melted butter or shortening. Pour the batter into a well greased baking pan and sprinkle the raisins over the top. Bake at 375 degrees for about 30 minutes if using a shallow oblong pan. During baking the raisins will sink into the batter and should be nicely distributed through the bread.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

Commercial TV starts in Scotland on Aug. 31.

The British Independent Television Authority has granted a licence to Scottish Television Ltd., owned by Canadian publisher Roy Thomson. He says nearly 500,000 sets are expected to be installed within the tele[illegible] burgh by air time.

Advertising rates are high — for a minute the rates range from $40 to $250.

* * *

Catch "Snowshoes" on Playhouse 90 (channel 11, 9.30 tonight). "Snowshoes" is a horse that needs them to win — and he's supported by a fancy bunch of tracketeers, including Harry Sullivan, John Carradine and, in his TV debut, Harpo Marx.

* * *

HOLIDAY REVIEW: Things were so dull New Year's Eve that this writer wound up watching a late movie. . . . Wednesday night, CBC's review of B.C. News was well done, and Red Skelton came up with his best show in months, by using his face instead of his voice for laughs.

At CHEK TV Len Carlson is quite an improvement over The Cowpoke. . . . But that Wednesday sportscast! Of five football scores, two were written wrong and a third was read wrong.

* * *

TV BITS: CBS plans to open the 1957-58 season in September with "Porgy and Bess" in full — an hour on a Sunday and the remaining 90 minutes the next night. TV rights sold for $112,000. . . . with Gerald McBoing-Boing an instant success on TV, CBS may also present a cartoon show around "Mr. Magoo." . . . Buick has agreed to put up $250,000 for a Judy Garland spectacular around March 1.

More about Desilu, which this year will film 735 half-hour shows, using more film than all Hollywood studios. Value of Desilu films will be $21,120,000 and shows will include "Lucy," and other standards along with such newcomers as "Those Whiting Girls," "Whirlybirds," "Young Tarzan," "Rookie Cop," "Hell on Wheels," "The Wildcatters" and "The Last Marshal."

Thomas (Mayor of the Town) Mitchell will officiate when KVOS-TV channel 12, Bellingham, opens its new transmitter at 10.30 p.m., Jan. 19. . . . Alcoa Hour, Feb. 15, will be a spectacular on the life of old time singer Gene Austin, starring Austin.

"What program am I watching? 'Bob Cummings' Show' . . . 'Circus Time' . . . 'Groucho Marx' . . ."

Jump in Price Index Biggest Since Korea

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's consumer price index, cuts also contributed to the upward barometer of living costs, rose more sharply in 1956 than at any time since the 1950-51 Korean war period.

The index based on 1949 prices equalling 100 rose from 114.1 in January to a record 119.3 in October, an increase of 4.7 points.

Government officials say present information indicates that the index will not fluctuate much for the balance of the year.

An official of the Bureau of Statistics said there was little or no change in November in the prices of goods and services used in computing the index.

FASTER CLIMB

The increase in the January-October period of 3.7 points was substantial, compared with the previous three years. Last year the index in the 10-month period rose 0 points from 116.1 to 116.1. In 1954 the rise was 0.9 points and in 1953 it was .3 points.

However, the 3.7 rise was considerably less than the increases in 1950 and 1951 during the inflationary period caused by the Korean conflict.

In the corresponding 10-month period in 1950 the index rose 8.1 points in total. For the full year the increase was 7.9 points.

The index in 1955 rose four points in the January-October period and 0.1 points for the full year to 118.2.

MAIN FACTOR

Spiralling food prices mainly were responsible for the rise in the index this year. Prices for goods such as for new passenger cars, liquor, fuel, household appliances and various services such as hair cuts, were much lower.

The food sub-index rose sharply from 109.9 in January to 117.9 in October, most of the rise coming in the June-October period.

While the overall index moved upward sharply in 1956 the average wages, which are paid in Canada rose from $60.51 in January to $63.01 in September.

STARTED LOWER

The year started with lower food prices pushing down the index from December. Food prices continued to decline in January offsetting other price increases and keeping the index at 116.1.

In March the index crept up to 116.6 points following price rises for some foods, rent, automobile licences and medical and dental fees. There was no change in April as decreases in food and household operation costs counterbalanced slight increases for shelter, clothing and other commodities and services.

But in May food prices jumped sharply, moving the index up 1.2 points to 117.8. It was the highest monthly rise in five years. The index then slowed and caught federal price experts by surprise. The food sub-index moved up an unusual 3.2 points to 112.5.

No Nation Wants Him

Stateless Person Doomed to Sail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Christian Hanna, with no home but the sea, sails away today still confined to his tiny cabin.

But there is still hope for a home in Canada. He is expected to stop Thursday in Montreal. Immigration officials in Ottawa said they have been asked to let him land in Canada for England with his wife.

A Vancouver woman lawyer is working to get him a home and who wishes to remain anonymous said Tuesday:

There is plenty of hope. I am working through authorities in Ottawa. People are kind and trying to help but this has to be done in the correct way.

I believe we may be successful.

Although the Newfoundlander is being escorted by two Mounties, he is treated as a guest by the fellow passengers and crew members.

Candy, books, clothes, cigarettes and many gifts have been showered upon him. There were tearful farewells as presents to pack into Hanna's cabin.

Hanna, who claims he was born at sea, has no known nationality and has been sailing around the world since he was released from Belsen Detention Camp 10 months ago.

No country will allow him to land. Some have held him up and others the ship was in port.

He is a good man and I know he will get a break, said a ship's officer.

Two members of a B.C. Indian tribe wanted the ship officers to adopt Hanna into their tribe.

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration officials indicated yesterday that Christian Hanna, stateless seaman without a country, will not be admitted to Canada.

Immigration officials said

Truck Leads Chase

City police are looking for a red pickup truck which led officers on a lumber yard operator on a lumber chase Tuesday evening.

At 7.10 p.m. Sangha Singh of the Atom Lumber Co. told police he was chasing a red pickup truck arriving about 200 feet of lumber stolen from his yard in Victoria West.

Five minutes later two detectives who hurried to the scene reported they had lost track of the truck.

In another five minutes Lloyd-Smith 550 David phoned police to say a truck of the same description had just hit a parked car outside his home and had not stopped.

Two minutes later William Denysik 682 Sumas, reported the truck had hit a car parked on his street and had not stopped.

Eight minutes after that Sangha Singh came to the station saying he had lost the truck near Quadra, in the Tattersall Darwin zone.

Twelve minutes later another report to the police said the red truck had dumped its stolen lumber at 558 Sumas.

Police had one final glimpse of the truck—going out Gorge Road at high speed.

Queen Off Dress List

NEW YORK (AP) — New faces, younger faces and an unusual number of beautiful Hollywood faces showed up Wednesday in the New York Dress Institute's annual selection of the world's best-dressed women.

Off the "tasteful twelve" list—actually 14 this year because of two ties—were noted winners of past years like Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, and England's Queen Elizabeth.

Princess Margaret made the list this year, but was tied with her aunt, the Duchess of Kent.

This year's list:

1. Mrs. William Paley.
2. The Duchess of Windsor.
3. Princess Grace of Monaco.
4. Mrs. Winston Guest.
5. Audrey Hepburn and Marlene Dietrich.
6. Mrs. William Randolph Hearst.
7. Countess Consuelo Crespi.
8. Rosalind Russell.
9. The Duchess of Kent and [illegible]
10. The Countess of Quintanilla, Madrid.
11. Mrs. Henry Ford II.
12. Countess Mona von Bismarck, the former Mrs. Harrison Williams.

Stranded Pair Dying of Cold

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — Powerful winds and blinding snow turned back rescue teams again Wednesday night, leaving the two frost-bitten men for their 12th night 12,000 feet up Mont Blanc.

As night fell over Europe's highest peak, hopes began to fade that Jean Vincendon, 23, a Frenchman, and Francois Henry, 24, a Belgian, could be rescued alive.

Both men lay muffled in three sleeping bags each in a damaged helicopter which crashed while trying to rescue them two days ago. Its crew of four and two other men who followed by parachute huddled several hundred yards away in a mountain shelter.

It's Long Way From Trapeze

By SHELAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Yul Brynner has been offered a million dollars—it says here to star in "The Great Grimaldi," the story of the most famous clown of them all. Yul has come a long way since he earned bread and butter as the man on the flying trapeze.

Ingrid Bergman is again denying rumors of trouble in her marriage to Roberto Rossellini.

Joan Crawford insists she will not make any movies in 1957—"Because Al (husband Alfred Stelle) has to spend most of the year in South America and Africa on business, and I'm flying with him. There'll be no more partings."

Which reminds me, Mrs. Harry Belafonte wired me that she and her singer-husband are not divorced, denying Belafonte's quoted statement to a reporter in London.

In "Fire Down Below" neither Rita Hayworth nor Robert Mitchum appears until the film is half an hour along. Jack Lemon gets the lion's share of the footage.

Irwin Shaw, who scripted this movie, was paid in excess of $100,000 for his work. Next for Irwin is "Desire Under the Elms," for Don Hartman, to star Spencer Tracy, Sophia Loren and Anthony Perkins.

Andy Griffith arrives here next week to star for Mervyn Leroy in "No Time for Sergeants."

Mai Zetterling persuaded her best beau, Tyrone Power, to appear with her on a live dramatic show. "I went hot and cold at the first rehearsal," Ty said later, but recovered an even temperature in time to take his leading lady to supper.

Marjorie Main found her new "Pa" Kettle—Parker Fennelly—in vaudeville 40 years ago. He played Titus Moody for Fred Allen. The last Pa, Percy Kilbride, had an unusual clause in his contract for his last of the series: "I'll do this one on condition you don't ask me to do another." The new one is called "Ma and Pa Kettle on Old MacDonald's Farm." That'll take quite a space on the marquee.

'Erb the Gent

This Real Detective Hero Makes Pastry His Hobby

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UP)—Ever since Sherlock Holmes sawed away at his violin in the meditative throes of deduction, a good detective always seems to have some sort of hobby.

So it is fitting that the detective hero of this true story should be found in his kitchen in a clean white apron, patting down the last spoonful of icing on a cake.

Detective Superintendent Herbert Hannam of Scotland Yard—"The Count" to his colleagues and "'Erb the Gent to the underworld—bakes pastry for a hobby. He holds a diploma as a pastry cook, earned 40 years ago.

Hannam stands now at the crossroads of his detective career. On Dec. 19, he arrested Dr. John Bodkin Adams, a prominent physician in the seaside resort of Eastbourne, on a charge of murder. He specifically accused the 57-year-old bachelor of killing Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, a widow who left $215,000 when she died in 1950 at the age of 81. She was cremated and her ashes scattered.

One such murder would have caused furore enough. But Hannam has investigated the deaths of more than 20 other patients of Dr. Adams, most of them widows, most of them old and wealthy.

In this type of investigation Hannam has few superiors. He has a talent for the most complicated kind of research.

In 1947 and 1948, he toured the Riviera and the United States to help break up a currency racket involving $280,000,000. Later he was assigned to internal security cases.

TOWPATH MURDERS

During 1953, two girls were hacked to death, raped and their bodies thrown with their bicycles into the River Thames. It became known as the "Towpath Murders."

Hannam took 1,650 written statements from everyone he could find who had been near that stretch of river on May 31, 1953. One of the last was given by a schoolmaster who recalled seeing a man practising throwing an axe at a tree.

His description led to the arrest of Alfred Charles Whiteway, a 22-year-old laborer. A three-mile stretch of the Thames was drained. Whiteway's shoes were found. One tiny spot was found to be bloodstained. Whiteway was hanged.

Two years later Hannam sent another man to the gallows on the basis of the tread of his bicycle tire.

Hannam has spent four months completing his dossier on Dr. Adams, who appears at a preliminary hearing Jan. 14. When the case is finished, Hannam's associates know what he will do. He will curl up with a good historical novel.

Next to making pastry, it is his favorite recreation.

"THE MAGGIE"
Starring PAUL DOUGLAS with ALEX MACKENZIE HUGHIE GREGG TOMMY KLARINS and an All Star Cast
One of the funniest comedies to come out of the Land of the Heather directed by the same man, Alexander MacKendrick, who gave us "Tight Little Island". When a high powered American business man tries to match wits with a dour Scot you can expect complications. When that Scot is the skipper of the "Maggie"—one of 50 odd "puffer" boats which ply the waters of the West Highlands—it becomes hilarious. How the American is brought under the soothing influence of the people who speak only the "Language of the Angels" is our story. One you shouldn't miss on any account.
